How is sustainable medical technology being deployed elsewhere in Europe - and what can we learn from it?

In our online event, we will highlight different perspectives from Europe and collect sustainability stories from the healthcare and medical technology sectors. Experts from various countries will show how sustainability is being embedded in healthcare, what role the circular economy and circular business models play, and how regulation and procurement are driving change.

We will discuss different approaches, identify transferable solutions, and talk openly about stumbling blocks and success factors – with a view to working together and learning from each other. You can look forward to inspiring insights and practical ideas that promote innovation, the circular economy, and climate protection. Together. Across borders.
