Real progress in healthcare happens when science, technology, and practice come together. Innovation alone is not enough – the real challenge lies in achieving a tangible impact. The TechMed Event 2025 brings together experts, researchers, entrepreneurs, and healthcare professionals to explore how collaboration at every stage, from fundamental research to implementation, drives real improvements in patient care.

Technological advancements are moving at a rapid pace, but how do we ensure that innovations are not just developed but also successfully integrated into healthcare? How can we bridge the gap between research and application and work together on impactful solutions? Throughout the day, leading experts will share their insights and experiences on what it takes to translate technology into real-world healthcare improvements.

The programme will feature inspiring keynote speakers, interactive sessions, and panel discussions, all focused on collaboration and impact. There will also be plenty of opportunities to connect with professionals dedicated to shaping the future of healthcare. Whether you are involved in research, technology development, or practical implementation, this event will help you build meaningful connections and work towards real change.

Improving Healthcare Through Innovation and Collaboration

On Thursday, 6 November, the TechMed Centre will host the seventh edition of the annual TechMed Event. Leading stakeholders, including healthcare professionals, companies, administrators, researchers, investors, talented students and policymakers, will come together to inspire each other, reflect on the past years, and provide a platform for future-oriented challenges. The TechMed Centre promotes interdisciplinary collaboration to share knowledge, drive innovation, and create a roadmap for a sustainable future in healthcare.
